U.S. Navy Seeks Shrike Missile

Labor Union Policy Rift Is Revealed

UAW Criticizes Parent AFL-CIO For Complacency

DETROIT (AP) — A widening policy rift between officials of the AFL-CIO and its largest affiliate — the 1.2-million-member United Auto Workers Union — was out in the open today.

In an unprecedented move, the UAW sharply criticized the parent labor organization Thursday for what it termed complacency and clinging to the status quo.

Disagreements between the two labor giants, the UAW said, go to the heart of the fulfillment of the fundamental aims and purposes of the American labor movement.

Although some observers believed the strongly worded statement left the door open for eventual withdrawal of the UAW from the federation, one informed source said there has been no such discussion among the union's inner circle.

The source said: "All such talk has been on the outside, not on the inside. The statement was issued because we have not been able to solve our policy conflicts in private and therefore have decided to bring disagreements in to the open."

"We don't want our membership to think that we are going along in silence with AFL-CIO policies with which we disagree."

The federation was created in 1955 with the merger of the AFL and the CIO.

In a letter sent to its union locals, the UAW contended the AFL-CIO "is not fulfilling the basic aims and purposes which prompted the merger."

The statement was signed by the union's four top officers — President Walter Reuther, Secretary-Treasurer Emil Mazey and Vice Presidents Leonard Woodcock and Pat Greenhouse.

It was an obvious attack on the leadership of AFL-CIO President George Meany, with whom Reuther has feuded for years. Relations between the two have deteriorated recently.

The UAW letter denounced the AFL-CIO for what it said was an absence of a spirit of tolerance of new ideas and difference of views, along with an understanding that the free labor movement must achieve unity in diversity.

In Washington, a spokesman said the AFL-CIO would have no comment on the letter.

Working in Ohio Seems Unhealthy Here of Late!

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — The fire, police and sewage departments in adjacent Struthers were operating with minimum manpower today as most of the employees called in sick, city officials said.

The sick calls were believed to stem from a dispute between the departments and the city over wage and benefit agreements that have been under discussion for some time, the officials said.

Seven of nine policemen failed to report today, as did one of three full-time fire department employees and three of four sewage plant workers.

Soviets Say Moon Probe Now Complete

Density of Soil Is Similar to That on Earth

MOSCOW (AP) — The unmanned Soviet moon probe Luna 13 used a mechanical finger to pick up unique data on the lunar surface and has now ended its work, the Soviet news agency Tass reported today.

Tass said Luna 13, which sat down on the moon Christmas Eve, found the moon's outer layer similar to that of the earth.

The Tass account did not say when the signals from Luna 13 shut down but said the spacecraft had finished its work. This seemed to preclude any possibility that the Soviets might attempt to bring Luna 13 back to earth with samples of moon rock.

Official reports Thursday said that if sufficient power remained, Luna 13 might broadcast a New Year's message from the moon.

Preliminary data broadcast from Luna 13 on the firmness of the lunar soil indicated it was strong enough to support the landing of a manned spacecraft. These findings may also prove important in determining whether man can work and survive on the moon.

A "gunpowder jet device" on the moonship fired a measuring rod into the lunar soil to test its density. Tass said preliminary data showed the density for a depth of 20 to 30 centimeters—7.8 to 11.8 inches—was similar to soil on earth of average density.

Tass also said Luna 13 confirmed that there was only a small amount of radioactivity on the moon's surface. This was first reported by Luna 9, the first spacecraft to land intact on the moon, on Feb. 3.

That landing disproved earlier theories that the moon's surface consisted of dust and would not support a landing spacecraft. Luna 9, however, took no measurements of the lunar soil.

Luna 13 landed in the Ocean of Storms region about 250 miles from the spot where Luna 9 landed. Tass said both sites and the Flamstead Crater where the American Surveyor satellite landed last summer all showed similar ground structures.

The ground around the Luna 13 landing site was described as a dug-up, grainy surface, containing a large quantity of stones and crater-type formations but no dust. Tass said the stones apparently fell on the moon at low speed and were not meteorites.

It said meteorites fell on the moon at far greater speed, causing the crater-shaped cavities on the lunar surface.

Numerous Churches Focus On New Year Observance

Many churches in the Community have scheduled services in conjunction with New Year observance.

Numerous congregations will partake in special devotional programs on New Year's Eve. Others will offer regular Sunday worship services, with a focus on the New Year occasion.

Here is a rundown on some of the services that have been scheduled:

Trinity Lutheran Church will hold services on New Year's Eve beginning at 8 p. m., sponsored by the Senior Luther League. The theme will be "From Heaven Above To Earth I Come", with Pastor Carl G. Zehner officiating. A single service is scheduled for 10:45 a. m. Sunday.

On New Year's Eve the Sacrament of Holy Communion will be observed by Candlelight at the altar of the First EUB Church. This holy service will begin at 10:30 p. m. and at each half hour interval, the pastor, the Rev. H. Eugene Flowers, will read the ritual of Holy Communion, and personally serve communicants at the Church Altar.

This will give individuals the opportunity at the designated periods to partake of the Sacrament and then leave at will. The service will be interspersed by appropriate sacred organ music by the church organists, Miss Lucille Kirkwood and Mrs. Verneal Thomas. The devotional period will be concluded at Midnight.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio 65 Health Insurance Association, formed in August 1964, to provide health insurance benefits to Ohio senior citizens, announced its dissolution here today.

Ben F. Hadley, executive vice president of Columbus Mutual and president of the association, made the announcement which followed a membership meeting.

Enrollment in the plan reached a high of 14,000 with claims of $1,264,000 incurred to date. Refunds totaling $106,000 are to be returned to certificate holders.

Rhodes Notified Of Grant Increase

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. James A. Rhodes has been informed by the Federal Office of Economic Opportunity in Chicago that Ohio will receive $1,523,000 increase for its programs this fiscal year under the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964.

In addition, Ohio will be allocated $5,816,000 to implement various community action programs. Under the EOA grant, the increase is from $18,079,000 to $19,602,000.

Will The Hawks Prevail?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Will the President, who must make the final decision to escalate or not, keep ordering more troops into the field, while at the same time holding out the olive branch to the Communist government of North Vietnam?

One thing is certain. Failure to achieve peace talks in the new year will increase demands for escalation to end the war militarily.

Already, Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., of the House Armed Services Committee has called for "the absolute annihilation of Hanoi and Haiphong if it is necessary to victory." Hanoi is North Vietnam's capital; Haiphong its main port.

What appears to be the dominant view in the Senate has been put by Sen. Richard E. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, in these words: "Their continued intransigence leaves us no choice but to inflict greater punishment on the Communists until they halt their aggression. I am convinced that the use of superior force is the only means by which they can be forced to the conference table."

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., had this to say: "As far as what weapons and techniques are needed to bring about victory or cause them to sit down at a conference table, it is a military problem, not a civilian problem."

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey has consistently voiced support for the administration's policy in Vietnam, causing disappointment among some old liberal friends who denounce the U.S. war effort.

Family Routed By House Blaze

Mr. and Mrs. Delno Harper and their six children were left homeless Thursday when fire destroyed their house in Pickaway Twp.

The Kingston Volunteer Fire Department was called to the scene. The home is located on Poling Road just north of the Ross - Pickaway County line. No injuries were reported.

The fire, believed caused by defective wiring, started in the upper floor of the home, officials reported.

Owned by Dwight Famulener, the residence was insured. However, the contents which were owned by Harper were not insured.

THE SIX youngsters range in age from five to 16. Investigating for the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department was Deputy George Linder.

Value of the house and contents has not been estimated.

Aid Sought For Parents, Six Children

A plea to aid an area family left homeless Thursday night when their residence was destroyed by fire was sounded today by the Pickaway County Chapter, American Red Cross.

The blaze destroyed the household and personal belongings of the Delno Harper family, Route 1, Kingston. In addition to the parents, there are five girls and one boy ranging in age from 5 to 16.

Mrs. Roliff Wolford, local Red Cross executive secretary, said three of the girls are teenagers. Their clothing sizes are 12 and 8.

Two other daughters wear sizes 8 and 6X. The son wears size 10.

MRS. HARPER'S clothing size is 16. Her husband can use items in the small size range.

The Pickaway Red Cross Chapter also has been assisting two other families victimized this week by fire. The blazes were at Orient and Era in the northwest section of the county.

Mrs. Wolford said clothing and household items are urgently needed for the Harper family. Home furnishings can still be used by the families at Orient and Era.

Persons wishing to contribute garments and furniture may contact the Red Cross office at Pickaway and Watt Sts.

Lausche Tells Governor Rhodes About Courtship

WASHINGTON (AP) — It might appear that Sen. Frank J. Lausche, Ohio Democrat, is "playing the field" in search of presidential timber, particularly because of his recent advice to a Republican.

"One who seeks the affections of a girl distantly and indifferently is likely to find her go to someone else," Lausche told the Republican — Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Though some say Rhodes may be courting the idea of a possible GOP nomination, the governor has shied away from declaring any intention to do so.

Lausche confirmed here Thursday that for the first time in 10 years he returned last week to the governor's office Ohio. According to Lausche, he and Rhodes exchanged ideas and discussed possible candidates for the presidency.

Fighting Is Light On Eve of Truce

Cease-Fire Scheduled For 6 P.M.

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Small-scale fighting flared in South Vietnam's Mekong Delta and the central lowlands today on the eve of the two-day New Year's truce.

In the air war, bad weather again curtailed raids on North Vietnam, but U.S. B52 bombers made three attacks on Communist positions in South Vietnam.

With the New Year's ceasefire scheduled to start at 6 p.m. EST Friday, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky threatened to cancel the four-day truce promised for the Vietnamese New Year in February unless the Viet Cong observe the truce this weekend better than they did the Christmas ceasefire.

In Saigon, American sources reported that a five-day port strike protesting the replacement of Vietnamese dockworkers by American servicemen had been settled. The settlement came near the end of an ineffective 12-hour general strike called in Saigon by the Vietnamese Confederation of Labor.

South Vietnamese troops clashed in three brisk firefights with Viet Cong guerrillas in the Mekong Delta and reported killing 45 of the enemy. Government casualties were reported moderate in one clash 65 miles southwest of Saigon and light in two actions 54 miles southwest of the capital.

Race Starts To Save Yawl In Atlantic

NEW YORK (AP) — Fighting high winds and heavy seas, two merchant ships plowed through the North Atlantic today to the rescue of 10 persons aboard a crippled 70-foot yawl.

Alerted by a low-flying Coast Guard aircraft, the British merchant vessel Cotswold and the German freighter Hille Oldendorff turned in the predawn hours toward the storm-tossed yawl, the Petrel.

The Cotswold radioed the Coast Guard in New York that she was 66 miles from the Petrel and was making 10 knots in heavy seas. She said she expected to reach the yawl at 1 p.m. The German ship, 70 miles from the scene, reported she was making slow progress.

The Petrel — shipping water, her masts carried away and her radio dead after getting off a distress signal — was 360 miles southeast of New York.

The 10 aboard the Petrel, mostly college students, were on a holiday cruise from Stamford, Conn., to Bermuda. They left Stamford Monday.

The ship is captained by Gordon Van Ness, 26 of Yonkers, N.Y., a medical student at Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio. His father, and the ship's owner, Hans Van Ness of Yonkers, said he was confident the Petrel would stay afloat.

He said his son is "a good seaman who has been on the seas since he was 6 years old."

U.S. Navy Seeks Shrike Missile

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy has just ordered $6.1-million worth of Shrikes, the air-to-ground missile which, according to some reports, haven't worked too well in Vietnam.

Whether they work as intended, a Navy source said Thursday night, the fact remains that the demand for Shrikes in Vietnam exceeds the available supply.

A $4.4-million contract for Shrikes was let Wednesday to the Sperry Rand Corp., of Bristol, Tenn., along with a $1.7-million contract to Texas Instruments, Inc., of Dallas, Tex.

So far unofficial figures indicate $84.5 million has been spent on the 1,500-mile an hour Shrike. Official figures were not immediately available.

While the Navy is still buying Shrikes, reports are circulating in the Pentagon that contracts are being drawn for production of a Shrike replacement. The figure generally used is $90 million to $100 million.

The Shrike, which came into the combat inventory in 1965, is known as an antiradiation missile.

It is designed to home on the electronic beams emitted by the enemy's radar. This radar is used by the North Vietnamese to detect approaching aircraft and for controlling the aim of guns and missiles.

There have been reports that the Shrike, which is quite similar in design and appearance to the Sparrow III air-to-air missile, is confused when the enemy flicks his radar sets at multiple sites on and off.

To counter this tactic, the improved Shrike supposedly will have a memory built into it, one which will select a radar beam, plot its location and continue on course even though the target ceases transmissions. It will ignore beams from other sites.

The Shrike has a range of eight to 10 miles. The new antiradiation missile reportedly will have a range four to five times the Shrike's.

Still shrouded in secrecy is a follow-on missile known as HOGS — Homing Optical Guidance System. This will use a terrain map-matching technique.

The homing device on this missile will have terrain features built into its memory. When the missile matches the map with what it sees, it will plunge onto target.

Third Time Is Out for Mrs. Powell

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was three times and out today for Mrs. Adam Clayton Powell as she turned down once more a date with a congressional investigating committee.

Chairman Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, said that by her last chance and he will recommend she be removed from her $20,500-a-year job on her husband's congressional staff.

Mrs. Powell, who lives in Puerto Rico, was subpoenaed to appear before Hays' subcommittee in its investigation of Powell's payroll and travel expenses.

She did not show up on two previous dates for her and was given a final chance today. The subcommittee is winding up its inquiry and writing a report due to be printed Jan. 3.

Through attorneys, Mrs. Powell said she was unable to make travel arrangements so speedily. Hays said airline tickets bought by the subcommittee for her and her 4-year-old son had been available in San Juan for days.

Before today's third nonappearance by Mrs. Powell, Hays had said if she did not show up he would recommend not only that she be fired but that she be cited for contempt of Congress.

British Protest Civilian Bombing

LONDON (AP) — Protests mounted in Britain today against American bombing of civilian areas of North Vietnam and the British government's recent lack of condemnation of American strategy.

Left-wing Labor members of Parliament were reported preparing an attack on the government when Parliament reopens Jan. 17 from its Christmas recess. They want an explanation from Foreign Secretary George Brown for his statement Dec. 19 that he did not believe reports of heavy casualties at Hanoi.

Liberal party representatives delivered a protest letter to Prime Minister Harold Wilson's office.

Congress To Study U.S. Bomb Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee is making a preliminary investigation into whether government sources withheld or misrepresented facts about U.S. bombing activities in North Vietnam.

A spokesman for the subcommittee on government information, headed by Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., said the group will decide soon after Congress reconvenes next month whether to schedule public hearings.

For the present, the spokesman said, the subcommittee staff has asked the Defense and State departments for transcripts of news conferences, copies of speeches and similar material. These will be studied and in some cases compared with other material, such as aerial reconnaissance photographs, to see whether the public statements reflected information available at the time.

Roundtown

'TIS THE season to be jolly, but the law is the law. . . . This was apparently the situation Thursday afternoon in Circleville Municipal Court. . . .

Charles Wilburn, local attorney with the firm of Crist, Davis and Weiden, was cited into the city court on a traffic violation by the State Highway Patrol. . . . Acting judge yesterday was none other than Emmitt Crist, Wilburn's associate. . . . Acting Judge Crist fined Wilburn $10 and costs for the speeding violation, although Wilburn protested profusely.

TWO CIRCLEVILLE duck-hunters had a narrow escape Thursday when their 8-foot boat was swamped in the Scioto River just north of the Red River Bridge. . . .

Joe Schneider of 585 N. Court St. and John Anderson, Knollwood Village, barely made it to shore after a thorough dunking at 5 p. m. . . .

Temperatures ranged below freezing at the time. . . . They last saw the boat floating downstream, upside down. . . . A valuable shotgun was lost in the river. . . .

The boat capsized about 10 yards from the east bank of the river in 10-foot deep water. . . . Schneider had on hip boots which quickly filled with water. He was able to shed them and pulled himself safely up the bank. . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wellman who live near the river at that point, gave the pair warm, dry clothing and called Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff. . . .

Sheriff Radcliff said the two hunters returned to the river today to look for the boat and try to drag the shotgun from the water. . . .

THIS COMMUNITY, like others across the nation, is all set to usher in the New Year Mid-night Saturday. . . .

As was the case at Christmas, the holiday officially will be observed on Monday. . . . Most businesses and offices will be closed, including The Herald which will not publish on this day.

He Works with Britain's 3 Million Slum Families

LONDON (AP) — By the standards of Charles Dickens' day, Britain today is an affluent society where the combination of private enterprise and the welfare state provide for most needs. Yet three million families live in slums, near-slums or grossly overcrowded conditions. Social workers call them the hidden homeless — families crowded into single rooms, in damp basements, often sharing a toilet and cold water faucets with up to 20 other people. Threatened by imminent family breakup because of the tensions under which they live — but still paying high rents.

These families have a roof, however leaky. Their children are not barefoot or in rags as the poor were a few decades ago. They are not underfed, though dieticians say they are often undernourished. A dedicated group, headed by a Scottish Presbyterian minister and his Boston-born wife, has decided the plight of the hidden homeless adds up to a national emergency. Three million families, they point out, mean at least 10 million people. All political parties agree it will take at least 10 years to meet their needs if existing slum clearance programs are fulfilled. By that time, with normal population increase, there will be more seeking aid.

The Rev. Bruce Kenrick, 46, knows what living in slum conditions is like. A wartime paratrooper officer, he is a graduate of Edinburgh University and Princeton Theological Seminary. While in America he married Isabel Howland Witty of Cambridge, Mass., and together they worked weekends in an East Harlem, N.Y., Protestant parish in what he calls "the muck and dirt of God's world."

The result was a book, "Come Out of the Wilderness." After returning to be ordained in the Church of Scotland, he went to work in India but was brought home with typhoid. When he recovered, the Kenricks cast around for a place where they could be useful. They picked the drab West London section of Notting Hill, then notorious for race riots. There the Kenricks made a home.

He started his Notting Hill housing trust on a shoestring but within a year it had $140,000 in gifts and raised five times that in loans and grants from authorities. Today it owns 54 houses and has rehoused 800 people.

This month he announced a national campaign for the homeless to be called Shelter. "We have to publicize the human need behind the statistics. By pouring large sums of money into a few carefully chosen black spots, we intend to show that dramatic results in terms of relieving human need can be achieved if everybody unites to deal with the emergency," he said.

The organization will concentrate in chosen black spots — London, Glasgow, Birmingham and Liverpool.

Student Leaders Forward Open Letter to Johnson

NEW YORK (AP) — One hundred student leaders from across the country have sent an open letter to President Johnson questioning U.S. goals in Vietnam.

"Unless this conflict can be eased, the United States will find some of her most loyal and courageous young people choosing to go to jail rather than to bear the country's arms, while countless others condone or even utilize techniques for evading their legal obligations," the letter said.

The letter, which the student leaders signed as individuals, was mailed to the White House Thursday. The signers are from both church and nonsectarian schools in every region of the country.

There was no immediate comment from the White House. "We write," the students said, "in hope that this letter will encourage a frank discussion of these problems. If such a discussion clarified American objectives in Vietnam, it might help reverse the drift, which is now from confusion toward disaffection. To this end, we submit for your consideration some of the questions now agitating the academic community."

— There is doubt that America's vital interests are sufficiently threatened in Vietnam to necessitate the growing commitment there.

— There is doubt that such vital interests as may be threatened are best protected by this growing commitment.

— There is doubt that a war which may devastate much of the countryside can lead to the stable and prosperous Vietnam we once hoped our presence would help create.

— There is considerable concern about apparent contradictions in the American position on certain points basic to any efforts to negotiate a settlement. High government officials reiterate our eagerness to negotiate "unconditionally," but we remain unclear about our willingness to accept full participation by the Viet Cong as an independent party to negotiations.

The letter urged Johnson to extend the New Year's truce even without a formal agreement with the Communists. It said this could be done by "de facto restraint on both sides."

The students' idea to write the letter to Johnson grew out of a debate at the annual congress of the National Student Association last summer on the campus of the University of Illinois.

The suggestion was put forward during the debate by Alard K. Lowenstein, a former president of the association who is now a lawyer and active reform Democrat in New York.

After the debate concluded, a group of 200 students held a rump meeting on the campus and agreed to draft such a letter.

They passed a hat and raised $83 to cover the expense of mailing the letter to student leaders around the country.

The letter was drafted and redrafted during September at meetings in the Manhattan home of Abby Erdmann, a sophomore at Smith College.

The students, however, postponed mailing it, first because of Johnson's trip to Asia, and then because of the elections.

"We didn't want it to look like an election gimmick," Miss Erdmann said Thursday.

U.S. headquarters reported the loss of an Air Force propeller-driven Skyraider 22 miles northeast of Phan Thiet on the South China Sea Coast. A spokesman said the plane was not shot down and the pilot was rescued.

In two of the day's three B52 raids, the bombers struck before dawn at North Vietnamese supply areas in Kontum Province in the central highlands.

The double raid was followed at midday by a B52 strike eight miles west of Bong Son, on the central coast about 280 miles northeast of Saigon. A spokesman said the target of this raid was a battalion-size force of North Vietnamese troops, or about 500 men.

This is the area where the U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airmobile Division have clashed throughout the week with North Vietnamese regulars. U.S. headquarters said the cavalrymen killed 74 North Vietnamese in scattered light contacts through Thursday.

In the air over North Vietnam Thursday, U.S. bomber pilots flew 73 missions against lines of communication and storage areas, most of them along the North Vietnamese coastline and in the southern panhandle. Pilots reported 13 barges, six trucks, two bridges and five storage or staging areas damaged or destroyed.

U.S. officials said the 5,000 striking dockworkers in Saigon would return to work tonight and an agreement would be signed Saturday.

The stevedores walked out Monday in protest against the replacement of Vietnamese by American servicemen at the Newport dock, a new U.S. military port facility. The sources said the U.S. military port command had agreed to hire 288 replaced dockworkers to work on Saigon's commercial docks.

Jefferson County Escapes Hunted

STUEBENVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Jefferson County sheriff's deputies were looking today for two men who escaped from the city jail in nearby Toronto some time late Thursday.

Deputies said John Wells, 18, and James Wheaton, 23, both of Steubenville, apparently used a hacksaw to remove a clasp on a jail cell lock and slipped past a guard on duty.

The two were arrested early Thursday in Wellsville for auto theft.

South Resists New Guidelines

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — The governor of Louisiana says he disagrees with a federal court order to desegregate Southern public schools next fall and thinks the U.S. Supreme Court will reverse the decision.

"I disagree completely with the majority," Gov. John J. McKeithen said Thursday, after the decision by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. "I presume the case will be appealed to the United States Supreme Court, and I think there are ample grounds for the Supreme Court to reverse this 2-1 decision."

The court held that the guidelines set up by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare should be followed by federal courts in school desegregation cases.

Stocks Show Early Rise

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rallied early this afternoon in heavy trading.

After three straight days of decline this week, the market finally began to mount a semblance of the traditional year-end rally—but it had far to go to overtake losses and emerge on the plus side for the week.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 4.18 at 790.53—recovering a portion of the 12.75 it lost on the previous three trading days.

Further indications of an easing in the tight credit situation that has plagued business and the market accompanied the rise.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.0 at 293.1 with industrials up 1.5, rails up .5 and utilities up .3.

Volunteers Man Trucks In Toledo

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The city of Toledo got more volunteers than it needed, and paid them $2.44 an hour, to drive the salt trucks that a municipal employees "demonstration" threatened to keep in the garage Thursday. And while volunteer drivers manned the trucks until 11 p.m., police rode along arresting picketers the second day of their walkout. At least 28 picketers from among 1,250 employees who quit working were booked for contempt of a court injunction. But none was jailed. Not even Charles Hendrix, business agent of Local 7, the Municipal Employees Union, who had said going to jail was preferable to calling off the protest for higher pay. Hendrix turned himself in at the Lucas County sheriff's office and posted the $50,000 bond specified for him on the order signed by Judge John Connors Jr. of common pleas court. The others, the majority arrested as they tried to prevent snow removal equipment from leaving the city safety building and service garage, generally were released on recognizance—and their pledge not to resume picketing. The Local 7 membership of 950 is embarked on what the city calls a strike, while 300 Teamsters Union members observe their picketing. The Municipal Employees Union is demanding an 8 per cent pay raise effective Jan. 1—equal to that given police and firemen in a recent settlement—rather than the 4 per cent scheduled. The stoppage coincided with a heavy snowstorm here Wednesday. With the citizen-driven salt trucks operating, state highway department equipment clearing main thoroughfares and the bad weather easing, problems with hazardous streets lessened. But refuse ordinarily hauled away by Teamsters remained uncollected. Meanwhile, the city took action under Ohio's Ferguson Act banning public employees' strikes—a law never invoked in 17 years. City Manager Frank Backstrom said absent employees were sent letters Thursday reminding them they have 10 days to return to their jobs or face dismissal.

Stocks Show Early Rise

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market rallied early this afternoon in heavy trading. After three straight days of decline this week, the market finally began to mount a semblance of the traditional year-end rally—but it had far to go to overtake losses and emerge on the plus side for the week. The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 4.18 at 790.53—recovering a portion of the 12.75 it lost on the previous three trading days. Further indications of an easing in the tight credit situation that has plagued business and the market accompanied the rise. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.0 at 233.1 with industrials up 1.5, rails up .5 and utilities up .3.

South Resists New Guidelines

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — The governor of Louisiana says he disagrees with a federal court order to desegregate Southern public schools next fall and thinks the U.S. Supreme Court will reverse the decision. "I disagree completely with the majority," Gov. John J. McKeithen said Thursday, after the decision by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. "I presume the case will be appealed to the United States Supreme Court, and I think there are ample grounds for the Supreme Court to reverse this 2-1 decision." The court held that the guidelines set up by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare should be followed by federal courts in school desegregation orders and that all grades, including kindergarten, should be desegregated by the fall of 1967. To which Florida School Supt. Floyd T. Christian remarked: "It would be as impossible as flying to the moon to complete desegregation by next fall. It will take time because of problems such as the location of schools, inadequate facilities and a shortage of teachers." The 2-1 court decision stemmed from seven school desegregation cases heard last May. The cases involved three school boards in Alabama and four in Louisiana. Under the HEW guidelines, segregated school systems do not get federal aid. Those systems under court order to desegregate or which have agreed to comply with the Civil Rights Act of 1954 continue to get aid. The guidelines have been under attack by many Southern congressmen and other political leaders who contend HEW is pushing desegregation faster and farther than the courts ordered.

Five Points News

By Mrs. Francis Furniss

There were only 47 present for Sunday School due to Christmas. Worship service followed. A nice crowd attended the Christmas Eve Service at Derby Church Saturday evening.

The Five Points Methodist Social Hour held their December meeting Friday evening in the church basement with a covered dish supper preceding the meeting. The president, Mrs. Helen Phillips, opened the meeting with group singing of Christmas carols and the Christmas Story.

Secretary Mrs. Francis Furniss read her report and Mrs. Clark Dennis gave the financial report. Contributions were made to the Restroom Fund. Birthday dues were paid by Mrs. Phillips. The past officers were retained for the New Year and Mrs. Phillips read an article, "Sermons We See" followed by group singing of several favorite hymns and closing with "an Evening Prayer" and the benediction. Mrs. Helen Phillips was hostess for the evening. The January meeting will be held the last Friday night in January, with Mr. and Mrs. Ned Long and family as hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kern and family were hosts at a Christmas Eve dinner in their home, with Mr. and Mrs. Gillis Conley and daughter Carmice

NEW YORK (AP) — The Federal Reserve now has begun to lift the pressure on banks to conserve rather than lend, thus making for historical purposes a neat one-year package with a beginning and an ending.

In between were some of the most controversial, tumultuous months in the Fed's 53-year history.

It was just one year ago this month that the Fed raised the discount rate to 4 1/2 per cent to slow what it felt was a growing tendency to inflation. As the year wore on, the clamp drew tighter.

This week the Fed said credit conditions had changed. While maintaining a general attitude of restraint, it revoked a Sept. 1 directive ordering banks to cut sharply their loans to business.

The Fed had been relaxing the restraints in its daily operations. This, however, was the first public acknowledgement of a change in attitude.

It is still too early to say that the Fed was right or wrong on its controversial moves of the past year. Historians must review events in relation to the decade, for the Fed's moves will have effects for years to come.

There is growing sentiment, however, that the Reserve's action to dampen demand through restricting money and credit had a lot of wisdom behind it.

The Fed first began to express concern about economic trends in 1965, William McChes-

To The Editor:

Heartbreak is the day your baby is born and from the depths of disbelief someone tells you that your little one is less than perfect.

Heartbreak is the hurt and fear you know from then on. It is the feeling of tiny fingers clinging to you with hope and wide eyes looking up at you with trust that has already been betrayed.

Heartbreak is knowing that you brought your child into the world, gave him life and then had to step aside and wait for medical science to take over.

Heartbreak is the sorrow of seeing your little one without sight or hearing or speech or muscular control without arms or legs. Heartbreak can be in the form of a defective heart or lungs or other malfunctioning organs or with arms that can not reach out, legs that can not walk, or with a nervous system that can not transmit emotion. It is not the degree of handi-ney Martin, chairman, made comparisons between 1929 and 1965 and was widely criticized for doing so.

He persisted, suggesting a tax increase might be needed. None came.

When the Fed raised the discount rate which affects all loans in the economy, its own house was divided. The vote was 4 to 3. Even Martin must have doubted his analysis.

Thereafter the Fed displayed imagination, innovation and possibly error, for some bankers claim it subsequently came down too hard, forcing up interest rates and almost precipitating a money panic.

Not only was it split within; the Fed was chastised by other federal agencies and was at odds with President Johnson. The President felt the economy was in order.

Some critics blamed it for threatening an end to the long "peacetime" boom in the nation's history. But the Fed maintained the boom was out of hand, that we were trying to spend more than we could produce.

What made the Fed act as it did? Simply stated, it considered demand to great. It had these signs: inflation, labor shortages, plant capacity that was near its limit, growing debt.

How did it get into such a historic controversy? Perhaps merely because of its responsibility to its goals. Its original responsibility was price stability, as stated explicitly in the Federal Reserve Act of 1913.

The Fed's role has since become more complex. To the simple goal of price stability now has been added a national policy of full employment, rapid economic growth, and more recently a complex balance-of-payments situation.

By its nature the Fed tends to accent price stability. The administration perhaps puts the emphasis on full employment. These goals are not necessarily at odds. Sometimes, however, the improvement in one area must temporarily be sacrificed for stability in another.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

HERE'S A SHORT mathematical puzzle that has stumped many an erudite scholar. The following arrangement of numbers has been made systematically: 8,5,4,9,1,7,6,3,2,0. Your job is to determine what the system is. (Answer: the numbers are arranged in alphabetical order: eight, five, four, nine, etc. Try it on those kids of yours who think they're so much smarter than their parents!)

A book full of interesting lore is R. Brash's "How Did It Begin." For example, why do many people nail a horseshoe over the door for good luck? To scare off witches, naturally. And why a horseshoe? Because witches dread horses. Who said so? Well, it figures, doesn't it? If they didn't dread horses, why did they ride uncomfortable broomsticks?

The representative of an American oil company, stationed in Tokyo, heard that an old college chum was contemplating a vacation trip to Japan. "When you get there," he urged, "be sure to give me a ring." "How will I find you?" asked the chum. "Simplest thing in the world," the oil man assured him. "Just look me up in the White Pages."

Overheard in a roadside snack bar just outside Boston: "Mom, can I go to the washroom?" "Did I hear you say 'can'?" "No, mom, I said 'washroom.'"

I am under the constant care of an excellent physician for a condition called "myasthenia gravis." Since it is such an uncommon disease I find that I am constantly trying to explain what it is to my friends and neighbors to satisfy their curiosity.

The reason for this letter is to ask if you would discuss myasthenia gravis for the relatives of persons like myself who are hounded by them with their "miracle cures." These range from yeast to vitamins, all offered with great authority read out of a book in a "health food store." All of us could benefit from your advice.

Dear Mrs. G.: I find your letter a particularly interesting one because it combines a medical and a social problem of interest.

Myasthenia gravis is a strange disease that occurs early in adult life and particularly affects women. I say strange because muscular weaknesses occur with it in all parts of the body. The muscles of the arms and legs and even muscles of the eyes are affected by a tremendous feeling of weakness.

This disorder resembles other muscular and nerve conditions and is only diagnosed by a series of complicated tests with drugs. When the diagnosis is definite, patients are kept in good condition and the disease is controlled with very special and specific drugs.

At the Mt. Sinai Hospital in New York, Dr. Kermit Osserman and his colleagues have devoted themselves to the study of the causes and control of myasthenia gravis with such brilliant research that much hope is offered to sufferers of this disabling illness.

Now let us talk about kind friends and solicitous neighbors. Their devotion to you is what prompts them to make these many suggestions. But out of generosity can come a burden if friends constantly bombard you with out-of-the-way cures, expensive food supplements and general advice.

It must be apparent to them that all the information now available on this unusual condition is known by your own doctor. I am certain that he would gladly offer his knowledge and seek the consultation of specialists anywhere in order to bring you maximum health.

For three years I have been taking my temperature. It never goes above 100 degrees but is more than 98.6 degrees. I have been to nine doctors to find the cause of my fever. They all say that they do not know why I have this peculiar temperature range. What shall I do about it?

Miss M.B., Indiana

Dear Miss B.: It must be obvious to you that you are in a self-made trap. Taking your temperature for three years and consulting nine doctors indicates to me that there is need for you to find out the reason for the underlying compulsion to continue this pattern. I am certain that a psychological consultation and guidance will relieve your anxiety.

A kingdom, so the old fable tells us, was once lost for want of a horseshoe nail, and maybe the 1968 Republican Presidential convention will hinge on the recent news from Albany, New York, that the New York Conservative Party has wrested "Row C" on the ballot away from the Liberal Party, which had held it for a quarter of a century.

It may take a little time for the national significance of what has happened in New York State to sink in. Ever since 1950 it has been assumed that the balance of power in New York has been held by the Liberals in alliance with the garment trade labor unions. Governor Nelson Rockefeller, Senator Jacob Javits and Mayor John Lindsay, all of them Republicans, have believed this just as fervently as have Democrats like Bobby Kennedy. So there was gloom in the local Democratic ranks last September when the Liberal Party, refusing to endorse Democrat Frank O'Connor for governor, nominated a person with a great name Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., to be its gubernatorial candidate on a separate Liberal ticket. Nelson Rockefeller, as a candidate to succeed himself, was correspondingly overjoyed to think that the liberal swing vote would be diverted from his main enemy, Mr. O'Connor. And Senator Jacob Javits, as Rocky's manager, was also very happy. As a candidate for the Vice Presidential nomination in 1968, Javits needed a Republican governor in Albany in order to give him a one-up position as a "favorite son" at the national convention.

Superficially considered, all went well in November for Rockefeller. Although he got only forty-six percent of the popular vote as compared to fifty-three percent in his 1958 showing, he still managed to pull an upset and defeat Frank J'Connor. And the unofficial vote count showed that the Liberal Party's Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. had come in third in the race, presumably taking enough votes away from O'Connor to guarantee Rocky's victory. The Conservative Party, so the first State-wide ally showed, had made a good showing but it was still the fourth place party, which made its "Row D" swing position less important than the Liberals' spot on "Row C."

The final recount, however, has changed all this, for, as it turns out, the Conservatives got 510,023 votes statewide for their candidate for governor, the relatively unknown Paul Adams, as compared to the Liberal Party's 507,234 votes for Franklin Roosevelt Jr. This gives "Row C" to the Conservatives and suddenly makes them the most important balance of power group in the State.

What this means is that Rockefeller - Javits liberalism can no longer be counted on to have things in New York all its own way. Conservative endorsement has become just as desirable as Liberal endorsement, if not a little more so.

The proof of this is to be found in the licking that Senator Javits has taken in his campaign to become a delegate - at large to the forthcoming State constitutional convention. Running with Liberal endorsement for this, Javits lost. Putting a wet finger to the wind, Republican State Chairman Carl Spad recently went out of his way to

May the New Year bring you much joy...

NEW YORK (AP) — The Federal Reserve now has begun to lift the pressure on banks to conserve rather than lend, thus making for historical purposes a neat one-year package with a beginning and an ending.

In between were some of the most controversial, tumultuous months in the Fed's 53-year history.

It was just one year ago this month that the Fed raised the discount rate to 4 1/2 per cent to slow what it felt was a growing tendency to inflation. As the year wore on, the clamp drew tighter.

This week the Fed said credit conditions had changed. While maintaining a general attitude of restraint, it revoked a Sept. 1 directive ordering banks to cut sharply their loans to business. The Fed had been relaxing the restraints in its daily operations. This, however, was the first public acknowledgement of a change in attitude.

It is still too early to say that the Fed was right or wrong on its controversial moves of the past year. Historians must review events in relation to the decade, for the Fed's moves will have effects for years to come.

There is growing sentiment, however, that the Reserve's action to dampen demand through restricting money and credit had a lot of wisdom behind it.

The Fed first began to express concern about economic trends in 1965. William McChesney Martin, chairman, made comparisons between 1929 and 1965 and was widely criticized for doing so.

He persisted, suggesting a tax increase might be needed. None came.

When the Fed raised the discount rate which affects all loans in the economy, its own house was divided. The vote was 4 to 3. Even Martin must have doubted his analysis.

Thereafter the Fed displayed imagination, innovation and possibly error, for some bankers claim it subsequently came down too hard, forcing up interest rates and almost precipitating a money panic.

Not only was it split within; the Fed was chastised by other federal agencies and was at odds with President Johnson. The President felt the economy was in order.

Some critics blamed it for threatening an end to the longest "peacetime" boom in the nation's history. But the Fed maintained the boom was out of hand, that we were trying to spend more than we could produce.

What made the Fed act as it did? Simply stated, it considered demand to great. It had these signs: inflation, labor shortages, plant capacity that was near its limit, growing debt.

How did it get into such a historic controversy? Perhaps merely because of its responsibility to its goals. Its original responsibility was price stability, as stated explicitly in the Federal Reserve Act of 1913.

The Fed's role has since become more complex. To the simple goal of price stability now has been added a national policy of full employment, rapid economic growth, and more recently a complex balance-of-payments situation.

By its nature the Fed tends to accent price stability. The administration perhaps puts the emphasis on full employment. These goals are not necessarily at odds. Sometimes, however, the improvement in one area must temporarily be sacrificed for stability in another.

speak good things about certain planks in the Conservative Party platform.

Rockefeller, as New York's Governor, will certainly have some voice at the 1968 Republican Presidential convention. But, as a minority governor with an increasingly powerful Conservative Party lurking in the wings, ready to give or withhold its endorsements, what will be Rocky's power to make a Vice Presidential deal for Javits? Powerful Republican governors such as Rhodes of Ohio and Reagan of California, and even Romney of Michigan, will surely have been warned by then that a Conservative defection in New York State might mean the loss of the State for any ticket "balanced" by a super-liberal.

Finally, what will Dick Nixon be doing now that the New York Conservative Party is the swing element to court in Nixon's new "home state"? As a resident of New York City since 1963, Nixon is in a position to seek unofficially friendly delegates to the 1968 convention even though Rocky and Javits remain the big bosses. Custom has it that a State delegation must be unanimously behind a "favorite son" for President. But Javits is only a "favorite son" for the Vice Presidency. Does this give Nixon scope for an offensive?

Don Adams Draws Laugh Even When He's Serious

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Don Adams, the flat-voiced sleuth of "Get Smart," is the kind of a comedian who draws laughs from his wife even when he's deadly serious.

Recently he telephoned his wife from a hospital and told her: "Darling, there's been an accident. I've broken my nose."

Mrs. Adams burst out laughing. When her husband grew indignant she explained that her alarm over his mention of an "accident" was so relieved by news of the broken nose that she felt impelled to laugh.

The accident to Adams was no joke to NBC and Talent Associates, which has an investment of millions riding on the comedian. Like only a few other stars — Lucille Ball, Andy Griffith, Jim Nabors — Adams is virtually irreplaceable in his television series, since his personality is so firmly imprinted on it.

Business Briefs

J. L. McNealey, president, Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. announced today that $18 million has been committed for new construction projects in 1967, in addition to the $14 million in projects under construction and not completed at the end of 1966.

Included in this figure are expenditures for the construction of generating and transmission facilities as a joint venture with Dayton Power & Light Co. and Cincinnati Gas and Electric Co.

"We are confident the area in which we serve will continue to grow and expenditures of this order will continue to be required to keep pace with such growth," McNealey said.

Three additional generating units with a total peaking capacity of 47,500 kilowatts were added to the system in 1966 at a cost of $4-1/2 million. This addition increases the Company's generating capacity to 937,500 kilowatts.

Two additional 13,750 kilowatt diesel - powered peaking units have been ordered for installation during 1967 at the company's Poston and Conesville generating plants.

"This highly progressive marketing area is one of the fastest growing major metropolitan centers in the entire Great Lakes and U. S. Industrial Heartland Region," the executive declared.

McNealey said the utility is expecting 1966 sales to exceed those of 1965 by 11 per cent. Sales for the next decade are forecasted to increase at an average annual rate of about seven per cent.

Fortunately for all concerned, Adams is recovering from the accident, with no apparent damage to his face or to his inimitable voice.

How did it happen?

"We were rehearsing a fight scene on a building that was under construction," he said. "I had gone through my scene a couple of times, then I stepped back while a couple of actors rehearsed their fight."

"I wanted to figure out where I would stand, and I turned around to see the position of a girder. I walked right into a punch. All at once the stars and rockets started going off and I couldn't feel a thing on my nose because it was so shattered. The pain was in my eye, and I was convinced that was where he hit me."

The comic was taken from the studio to a nearby hospital and a plastic surgeon was summoned. A one-hour operation put the nose back together, and Adams remained hospitalized for eight days. Production on the series was suspended indefinitely.

His nose is still bandaged, but he expects to be back in his J. Maxwell Smart form by the time the series resumes filming next week.

EDITOR'S NOTE — Where do the United States and its allies stand in Vietnam at the start of 1967 compared with the start of 1966? How has the situation changed this year? Here is an analysis by one of the most experienced reporters in Vietnam, winner of a Pulitzer Prize for his reporting from that country.

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — This has been the bloodiest year of the Vietnam war. Allied commanders have few illusions about what 1967 will bring.

An estimated 77,000 soldiers have fallen on the battlefields of Vietnam in 1966, two-thirds more than in the previous year. Most of these dead were Communist dead, yet high hopes that the huge allied buildup would break the enemy back once and for all in 1966 have not materialized.

The prospects are for more vicious battles, a lengthening casualty list, and a steady escalation that brings with it the threat of an ever larger conflict.

Allied commanders are more sober about prospects this year than ever before, and forecasts of "victory" come sparingly now that the best American military units have found and fought the enemy in the highlands, the plateaus and the coastal valleys, beaten him, and been forced to return again and again to the same battlefields to fight once more.

The enemy force has grown larger, despite an estimated 52,000 dead in 1966. By late December he was fielding an army of 280,000 men, or 50,000 more than a year ago.

The U.S. Command believes that not until late 1967 or early 1968 will American strength be sufficient to kill more of the enemy than can be replaced. The United States will have to provide the troops to do the job because the Vietnamese army is now considered at its peak strength.

The prospect is gloomy for an early military victory. But at least the past year has removed the specter of a military defeat, considered a possibility early in 1965.

As 1966 began the U.S. Army's 25th Division was pouring into Vietnam to boost U.S. strength past the 200,000 mark. Now ground troops number nearly 380,000.

But the Communists appear as willing as ever to continue paying the high price that the conventional-type battles invariably cost them under the crushing superiority of allied firepower.

Measured in human life, the Communists suffered three times more dead in 1966 than the combined allies — about 5,000 Americans, 10,000 Vietnamese, 600 from other nations.

From the propaganda viewpoint, some observers believe, the Communists are prepared to sacrifice 20 of their own for one American. They evidently feel that U.S. public opinion will eventually turn against the war if American casualties continue. American forces have met and crushed every enemy offensive in 1966. In doing so they have learned that these battles in the remote plateaus or highlands have had little or no bearing on the enemy stance in the populous Mekong River delta and along the fertile coast.

Hopes at the beginning of 1966 that the pacification programs "to win the hearts and minds of the people" would work better than in the past are still only hopes.

The enemy continues to recruit at will in much of Vietnam, and to extract taxes from as many as two-thirds of Vietnam's 15 million population, according to recent official U.S. figures.

U.S. Marines have started using troops in pacification. American forces are even standing guard at the southern gates of Saigon just beyond the Chinese suburb of Cholon, to try to reduce the freedom of Communist movement in and out of the capital city.

Hopes early in 1966 that the Vietnamese army would be revitalized by allied help have been dashed as U.S. troops bear more and more of the brunt of the war. The decision has been made to throw approximately 50 per cent of the Vietnamese army into pacification work, leaving the other half to guard bridges, base camps and other static security posts.

The United States will pump more than $70 million directly into the pacification program in 1967, five times more than in 1966. Hundreds of millions more will be spent on U.S. Aid projects and commodity support which indirectly serve the pacification goal.

Many observers feel that 1966 showed all too clearly what can — and what can't — be done quickly.

U.S. officials echo a plea by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, command of U.S. forces in Vietnam.

"What we need here is patience. We must have patience to deal with this complex problem," Westmoreland said. "It will take perseverance, endurance on the battlefield, and patience at home."

Don Adams Draws Laugh Even When He's Serious

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Don Adams, the flat-voiced sleuth of "Get Smart," is the kind of a comedian who draws laughs from his wife even when he's deadly serious.

Recently he telephoned his wife from a hospital and told her: "Darling, there's been an accident. I've broken my nose."

Mrs. Adams burst out laughing. When her husband grew indignant she explained that her alarm over his mention of an "accident" was so relieved by news of the broken nose that she felt impelled to laugh.

The accident to Adams was no joke to NBC and Talent Associates, which has an investment of millions riding on the comedian. Like only a few other stars — Lucille Ball, Andy Griffith, Jim Nabors — Adams is virtually irreplaceable in his television series, since his personality is so firmly imprinted on it.

Business Briefs

J. L. McNealey, president, Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. announced today that $18 million has been committed for new construction projects in 1967, in addition to the $14 million in projects under construction and not completed at the end of 1966.

Included in this figure are expenditures for the construction of generating and transmission facilities as a joint venture with Dayton Power & Light Co. and Cincinnati Gas and Electric Co.

"We are confident the area in which we serve will continue to grow and expenditures of this order will continue to be required to keep pace with such growth," McNealey said.

Three additional generating units with a total peaking capacity of 47,500 kilowatts were added to the system in 1966 at a cost of $4-1/2 million. This addition increases the Company's generating capacity to 937,500 kilowatts.

Two additional 13,750 kilowatt diesel-powered peaking units have been ordered for installation during 1967 at the company's Poston and Conesville generating plants.

"This highly progressive marketing area is one of the fastest growing major metropolitan centers in the entire Great Lakes and U. S. Industrial Heartland Region," the executive declared.

McNealey said the utility is expecting 1966 sales to exceed those of 1965 by 11 per cent. Sales for the next decade are forecasted to increase at an average annual rate of about seven per cent.

Fortunately for all concerned, Adams is recovering from the accident, with no apparent damage to his face or to his imitable voice.

How did it happen?

"We were rehearsing a fight scene on a building that was under construction," he said. "I had gone through my scene a couple of times, then I stepped back while a couple of actors rehearsed their fight."

"I wanted to figure out where I would stand, and I turned around to see the position of a girder. I walked right into a punch. All at once the stars and rockets started going off and I couldn't feel a thing on my nose because it was so shattered. The pain was in my eye, and I was convinced that was where he hit me."

The comic was taken from the studio to a nearby hospital and a plastic surgeon was summoned. A one-hour operation put the nose back together, and Adams remained hospitalized for eight days. Production on the series was suspended indefinitely.

His nose is still bandaged, but he expects to be back in his J. Maxwell Smart form by the time the series resumes filming next week.

Where Do We Go From Here?

EDITOR'S NOTE — Where do the United States and its allies stand in Vietnam at the start of 1967 compared with the start of 1966? How has the situation changed this year? Here is an analysis by one of the most experienced reporters in Vietnam, winner of a Pulitzer Prize for his reporting from that country.

By PETER ARNETT
SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — This has been the bloodiest year of the Vietnam war. Allied commanders have few illusions about what 1967 will bring.

An estimated 77,000 soldiers have fallen on the battlefields of Vietnam in 1966, two-thirds more than in the previous year. Most of these dead were Communist dead, yet high hopes that the huge allied buildup would break the enemy back once and for all in 1966 have not materialized.

The prospects are for more vicious battles, a lengthening casualty list, and a steady escalation that brings with it the threat of an ever larger conflict.

Allied commanders are more sober about prospects this year than ever before, and forecasts of "victory" come sparingly now that the best American military units have found and fought the enemy in the highlands, the plateaus and the coastal valleys, beaten him, and been forced to return again and again to the same battlefields to fight once more.

The enemy force has grown larger, despite an estimated 52,000 dead in 1966. By late December he was fielding an army of 280,000 men, or 50,000 more than a year ago.

The U.S. Command believes that not until late 1967 or early 1968 will American strength be sufficient to kill more of the enemy than can be replaced. The United States will have to provide the troops to do the job because the Vietnamese army is now considered at its peak strength.

The prospect is gloomy for an early military victory. But at least the past year has removed the specter of a military defeat, considered a possibility early in 1965.

As 1966 began the U.S. Army's 23rd Division was pouring into Vietnam to boost U.S. strength past the 200,000 mark. Now ground troops number nearly 380,000.

But the Communists appear as willing as ever to continue paying the high price that the conventional-type battles invariably cost them under the crushing superiority of allied firepower.

Measured in human life, the Communists suffered three times more dead in 1966 than the combined allies — about 5,000 Americans, 10,000 Vietnamese, 600 from other nations.

From the propaganda viewpoint, some observers believe, the Communists are prepared to sacrifice 20 of their own for one American. They evidently feel that U.S. public opinion will eventually turn against the war if American casualties continue.

American forces have met and crushed every enemy offensive in 1966. In doing so they have learned that these battles in the remote plateaus or highlands have had little or no bearing on the enemy stance in the populous Mekong River delta and along the fertile coast.

Hopes at the beginning of 1966 that the pacification programs "to win the hearts and minds of the people" would work better than in the past are still only hopes.

The enemy continues to recruit at will in much of Vietnam, and to extract taxes from as many as two-thirds of Vietnam's 15 million population, according to recent official U.S. figures.

U.S. Marines have started using troops in pacification. American forces are even standing guard at the southern gates of Saigon just beyond the Chinese suburb of Cholon, to try to reduce the freedom of Communist movement in and out of the capital city.

Hopes early in 1966 that the Vietnamese army would be revitalized by allied help have been dashed as U.S. troops bear more and more of the brunt of the war. The decision has been made to throw approximately 50 per cent of the Vietnamese army into pacification work, leaving the other half to guard bridges, base camps and other static security posts.

The United States will pump more than $70 million directly into the pacification program in 1967, five times more than in 1966. Hundreds of millions more

Dear Abby: Wrong Concept of Married Life

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My daughter married an older man — much older than herself. Recently they had a few quarrels, and she must have said something to him about leaving him, because he showed her a piece of paper which she signed the day before the marriage. It said if they ever got divorced, she couldn't claim any part of his estate, and he wouldn't have to support her, but he would support any children they might have. (No chance).

Abby, my daughter tells me she signed the paper in all the excitement of getting married without knowing what she was signing. What is she supposed to do if she decides she can't get along with him? Pick up and leave without getting a dime for the time she put in with this old guy?

WORRIED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Your daughter should ask a lawyer what her legal rights are. If she married "this old guy" for the right reasons, she wouldn't expect to be paid for "the time she put in" with him. The old boy sounds pretty smart. He'll feed a horse as long as it's in his own stable.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 8 years. We have three small children, and my wife is a fairly good housekeeper except that she insists on putting the garbage in with the trash. I have tried to explain to her that it is not only very unsanitary, but it is also illegal where we live.

It's like talking to the wall. I can't afford a garbage disposal and I don't want to hit her as I'm sure she'd have me arrested. What can I do?

ITCHY

DEAR ITCHY: First try the "Let's do it together" method of teaching, as you would with a child. If she doesn't catch on, prepare to take over the K.P. duty at your house. I don't know the penalty for combining trash with garbage, but it can't be as severe as wife beating.

DEAR ABBY: I used to ride to work with a man but now I take the bus because I don't want to get killed. He's about 70, and I think he needs eye glasses. He squints in order to see what's right in front of him. He can't even see the stop signs. We would have been in a couple of bad accidents if I hadn't yelled for him to stop.

The last time I got out and took a bus the rest of the way. How he gets his driver's license renewed is a mystery to me. He really is a menace on the street. Should I report him to the motor vehicle department or to the local police?

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: It would be a public service to suggest to the police that licensing authorities check the man's eyesight.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ANDY: Good manners are simply a sensitivity to the feelings of others. If you have that sensitivity, you have good manners, no matter which fork you use.

Romance Wasn't Flaming, It Was on Inflamed Side

DETROIT (AP) — If the next 20 years of the George Connelly's marriage are as hectic as the first two days, husband George may be in the hospital instead of his wife.

The former Carolyn Nadrowsky married George Tuesday, had an appendectomy Wednesday and celebrated her honeymoon in the hospital Thursday.

The newlyweds, both 27 and teachers, long had planned for a holiday wedding, followed by a reception for 150 guests and a honeymoon trip to the Pocono Mountains in Pennsylvania.

Last Monday, Carolyn awoke with an upset stomach.

"It was the day of the wedding rehearsal, so I thought it was just a case of nerves," she said.

The pain got worse. Carolyn managed to make it through the wedding rehearsal and a family dinner.

Tuesday morning, Connelly drove his fiancée to a hospital for a checkup. Doctors wanted Carolyn to stay on for observation. She refused. "I was scared that the wedding would have to be called off," she said. "I wouldn't stay."

Carolyn took aspirin and was married by candlelight at St. Veronica's Roman Catholic Church in East Detroit.

The couple stayed at the reception for a while to greet guests and then went to see a specialist. He ordered Carolyn to bed and gave her some pills for her nerves.

By Wednesday morning, the couple decided to go back to the hospital. By nightfall doctors had removed a badly inflamed appendix.

must have said something to him about leaving him, because he showed her a piece of paper which she signed the day before the marriage. It said if they ever got divorced, she couldn't claim any part of his estate, and he wouldn't have to support her, but he would support any children they might have. (No chance.)

Abby, my daughter tells me she signed the paper in all the excitement of getting married without knowing what she was signing. What is she supposed to do if she decides she can't get along with him? Pick up and leave without getting a dime for the time she put in with this old guy?

DEAR MOTHER: Your daughter should ask a lawyer what her legal rights are. If she married "this old guy" for the right reasons, she wouldn't expect to be paid for "the time she put in" with him. The old boy sounds pretty smart. He'll feed a horse as long as it's in his own stable.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 8 years. We have three small children, and my wife is a fairly good housekeeper except that she insists on putting the garbage in with the trash. I have tried to explain to her that it is not only very unsanitary, but it is also illegal where we live.

It's like talking to the wall. I can't afford a garbage disposal and I don't want to hit her as I'm sure she'd have me arrested. What can I do?

DEAR ITCHY: First try the "Let's do it together" method of teaching, as you would with a child. If she doesn't catch on, prepare to take over the K.P. duty at your house. I don't know the penalty for combining trash with garbage, but it can't be as severe as wife beating.

DEAR ABBY: I used to ride to work with a man but now I take the bus because I don't want to get killed. He's about 70, and I think he needs eye glasses. He squints in order to see what's right in front of him. He can't even see the stop signs. We would have been in a couple of bad accidents if I hadn't yelled for him to stop.

The last time I got out and took a bus the rest of the way. How he gets his driver's license renewed is a mystery to me. He really is a menace on the street. Should I report him to the motor vehicle department or to the local police?

DEAR CONCERNED: It would be a public service to suggest to the police that licensing authorities check the man's eyesight.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ANDY: Good manners are simply a sensitivity to the feelings of others. If you have that sensitivity, you have good manners, no matter which fork you use.

Romance Wasn't Flaming, It Was on Inflamed Side

DETROIT (AP) — If the next 20 years of the George Connelly's marriage are as hectic as the first two days, husband George may be in the hospital instead of his wife.

The former Carolyn Nadrowsky married George Tuesday, had an appendectomy Wednesday and celebrated her honeymoon in the hospital Thursday.

The newlyweds, both 27 and teachers, long had planned for a holiday wedding, followed by a reception for 150 guests and a honeymoon trip to the Pocono Mountains in Pennsylvania.

Last Monday, Carolyn awoke with an upset stomach.

"It was the day of the wedding rehearsal, so I thought it was just a case of nerves," she said.

The pain got worse. Carolyn managed to make it through the wedding rehearsal and a family dinner.

Tuesday morning, Connelly drove his fiancée to a hospital for a checkup. Doctors wanted Carolyn to stay on for observation. She refused. "I was scared that the wedding would have to be called off," she said. "I wouldn't stay."

Carolyn took aspirin and was married by candlelight at St. Veronica's Roman Catholic Church in East Detroit.

The couple stayed at the reception for a while to greet guests and then went to see a specialist. He ordered Carolyn to bed and gave her some pills for her nerves.

By Wednesday morning, the couple decided to go back to the hospital. By nightfall doctors had removed a badly inflamed appendix.

Hawkish Mood Prevails In Congress

Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, thinks the United States should recognize the National Liberation Front — political arm of the Viet Cong, the Red guerrilla force operating in South Vietnam — then "move toward negotiations and try to neutralize the area." Acceptance of Viet Cong negotiators at the conference table is one of North Vietnam's conditions for starting peace talks.

Fulbright conceded that his is a minority view and commented: "Congress is more warlike than the President."

Another who swims against the apparent congressional tide is Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, who wants to de-escalate the fighting and intensify peace bids.

"The options and alternatives," Mansfield contends, "are getting fewer."

The senator fears that the fighting may develop into a general Asian war.

A major difficulty in assessing the relative strength of the hawk and dove forces in the White House inner circle is the lack of a sharp definition of a hawk or of a dove.

To Fulbright Dean Rusk is certainly a hawk.

To Gen. Wallace M. Greene, commandant of the Marine Corps, Rusk is dove-ish.

In the view of many in Washington, Johnson himself is the foremost hawk. He has exhorted his field commanders in Vietnam to "come home with that coonskin on the wall."

In a Iowa speech last June, Johnson declared that as long as the Communists spurn negotiations "we must use our power to resist their aggression and try to change their minds."

But intimates say it must be obvious that nobody would be happier to entertain a Communist peace offer than Johnson, who must face the American voters again less than two years from now.

Johnson contends that he is neither hawk nor dove.

During a recent period when opponents of the war were bitterly criticizing McNamara, the President confided to friends that the secretary of defense was actually something of a dove.

The real hawk in his Cabinet, Johnson said, was Dean Rusk.

The President, Rusk and Rostow — the White House assistant on national security — share the conviction that Communist expansion in Asia is a threat comparable to the aggression of Hitler's Germany.

Johnson has even surmised that if South Vietnam falls the United States might be forced into a military defense of Hawaii.

During the new year, those who are unshakably hawk will advocate greater and greater military pressure either to crush the Communists or drive

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg has presented a five-point legal defense of the United Nations Security Council's sanctions against Rhodesia.

Goldberg told the Association of American Law Schools Thursday he was replying to criticism by "a number of individuals in our country" to the council's vote this month to embargo key items in trade with the rebellious British colony.

First, he denied the council flouted the principle of self-determination. Rather than asserting that principle, he explained, the white minority government is claiming "merely the right of 6 per cent of the Rhodesian people who are white to rule over 94 per cent who are black."

And because Rhodesia is a British territory and not a "state" with its own sovereignty, the U.N. action does not violate the U.N. charter's ban against intervention in "matters which are essentially in the domestic jurisdiction of any state," he said.

Police Chief Is Cool Toward Revamping Plans

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland's Little Hoover Commission has issued a controversial report calling for total reorganization of the police force — including closing city jail and recruiting new leadership to take over when the present chief, Richard Wagner, retires.

Chief Wagner, who was on hand at a news conference at which the report was made public, was critical of the report and said he has "no immediate plans for retirement."

The report prepared by Dr. George D. Eastman of the Public Administration Service in Chicago called for sweeping changes, not only in organization and services, but a change in philosophy to meet social and economic changes.

A. A. Sommers Jr., a commission member, said police problems are "not unique to Cleveland but are nation-wide general problems, particularly in central cities surrounded by suburbs."

The report urged establishment of an "effective community relations program so that police and the community may better understand each other's problems and jointly work out solutions."

Eastman, a former Seattle police chief, was critical in his report of the Cleveland department's philosophy in dealing with the community. The department was called "defensive, isolated, parochial and mistrustful of the public it serves."

At the same time, the report said, "the community must recognize and accept its responsibility for the conditions that result in criminal behavior, social disorganization and subsequent violent and lawless conduct."

Chief Wagner agreed with some recommendations, including one for a new headquarters building and replacement of 80 per cent of the department's vehicles, but he said there was "total and irreconcilable disagreement" on some other matters.

Regarding the recommendation for new leadership, the chief said: "If I thought I was not doing a good job I would expect the mayor to fire me."

He criticized the analyst for ignoring a department organization plan of 1964 which established a "table of organization" remarkably like the one now proposed.

Today in Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg has presented a five-point legal defense of the United Nations Security Council's sanctions against Rhodesia.

Goldberg told the Association of American Law Schools Thursday he was replying to criticism by "a number of individuals in our country" to the council's vote this month to embargo key items in trade with the rebellious British colony.

First, he denied the council flouted the principle of self-determination. Rather than asserting that principle, he explained, the white minority government is claiming "merely the right of 6 per cent of the Rhodesian people who are white to rule over 94 per cent who are black."

And because Rhodesia is a British territory and not a "state" with its own sovereignty, the U.N. action does not violate the U.N. charter's ban against intervention in "matters which are essentially in the domestic jurisdiction of any state," he said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Columnist Walter Lippmann says he and his wife are moving from Washington because he has "an impelling feeling that you get into a rut if you stay in one place for too long."

Police Chief Is Cool Toward Revamping Plans

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland's Little Hoover Commission has issued a controversial report calling for total reorganization of the police force—including closing city jail and recruiting new leadership to take over when the present chief, Richard Wagner, retires.

Chief Wagner, who was on hand at a news conference at which the report was made public, was critical of the report and said he has "no immediate

How Weather Looks Today

OHIO WEATHER SUMMARY
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Official Weather Bureau summary of Ohio's weather:

Skies cleared over all except extreme northeast Ohio during the night. Snow flurries continued from Cleveland northeastward. Temperatures dropped to as low as 12 in Findlay, 13 in Mansfield and 15 in Toledo by dawn.

High pressure was to move over Ohio today, bringing fair but cold weather. Midafternoon temperatures were to range from the 20s north to the low 30s south.

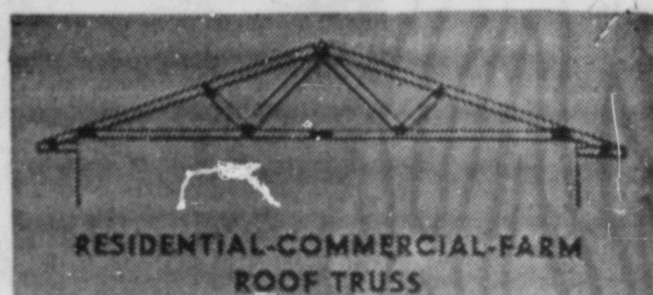

Another weather system now forming in the Midwest will increase cloudiness over western Ohio late tonight. On Saturday snow is forecast to spread across the state, possibly changing to rain in the southern counties.

Temperatures will be slightly warmer Saturday.

plans for retirement."

The report prepared by Dr. George D. Eastman of the Public Administration Service in Chicago called for sweeping changes, not only in organization and services, but a change in philosophy to meet social and economic changes.

A. A. Sommers Jr., a commission member, said police problems are "not unique to Cleveland but are nation-wide general problems, particularly in central cities surrounded by suburbs."

The report urged establishment of an "effective community relations program so that police and the community may better understand each other's problems and jointly work out solutions."

Eastman, a former Seattle police chief, was critical in his report of the Cleveland department's philosophy in dealing with the community. The department was called "defensive, isolated, parochial and mistrustful of the public it serves."

At the same time, the report said, "the community must recognize and accept its responsibility for the conditions that result in criminal behavior, social disorganization and subsequent violent and lawless conduct."

Chief Wagner agreed with some recommendations, including one for a new headquarters building and replacement of 80 per cent of the department's vehicles, but he said there was "total and irreconcilable disagreement" on some other matters.

Regarding the recommendation for new leadership, the chief said:

"If I thought I was not doing a good job I would expect the mayor to fire me."

He criticized the analyst for ignoring a department organization plan of 1964 which established a "table of organization remarkably like the one now proposed."

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Man of the Bears

For his earnest devotion to a duty that is everyone's...
For his faithfulness in exercising the most precious freedom of all...
For his resolute courage in the face of dangers real and imagined...
For his honest appraisal of his human strength, and his humble trust in God...
For his deep insight into the needs of mankind, evident in his support of unselfish causes...
For his friendliness as a neighbor, his loyalty as an employee, his integrity as a community leader...
For his family's response to his own Christian example, and their participation with him in the life of the Church...
For his readiness to share with you and me the faith that lives in his heart...

Today is Friday, Dec. 30, the 364th day of 1966. There is one day left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1903, the Iroquois Theater in Chicago was destroyed by fire. Some 388 persons lost their lives in that blaze.

On this date: In 1853, the Gadsden Purchase was made by a treaty with Mexico. The United States acquired what is now the southern part of New Mexico and Arizona for $15 million.

Ten years ago—The Hungarian Communist government, in response to an Indian government statement that 25,000 Hungarians and 7,000 Russians were killed in Budapest during the November uprising against communism, said that no more than 2,000 Hungarians lost their lives in the revolution.

Five years ago — Administration sources said President John F. Kennedy believes the year 1961 produced few Communist gains and some encouraging signs for the West. But, the sources added in the President's view there was no significant easing of East-West tensions.

One year ago—Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr., who stayed in space a record 14 days earlier in the month, told newsmen they feel there is no limit on how long man can exist in space.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL ... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Man of the Years

For his earnest devotion to a duty that is everyone's ...
For his faithfulness in exercising the most precious freedom of all ...
For his resolute courage in the face of dangers real and imagined ...
For his honest appraisal of his human strength, and his humble trust in God ...
For his deep insight into the needs of mankind, evident in his support of unselfish causes ...
For his friendliness as a neighbor, his loyalty as an employee, his integrity as a community leader ...
For his family's response to his own Christian example, and their participation with him in the life of the Church ...
For his readiness to share with you and me the faith that lives in his heart ...

THE LIFE OF JESUS PRIOR TO HIS PUBLIC MINISTRY

Scripture—Luke 3:1-4:13.

By R. H. RAMSEY

ALL THE lessons for the first quarter of this brand new year are based upon the Gospel according to St. Luke. Though Luke stands out as one of the greatest literary men of all time, the Bible tells us but little about him. He has been described as the "beloved physician." He is assumed to be the author of both the Gospel which bears his name and the Book of Acts.

He was a careful historian with a vigorous literary style. He speaks of "having a perfect understanding of all things from the very first." He had a sense of the universality of Christ's mission, and emphasized the compassion, charity, prayerfulness and tenderness of our Lord. A Gentile and native of Antioch, Syria, Luke was a close companion of Paul, joining him on his missionary journeys to Troas and Philippi and remaining with him during Paul's two-year imprisonment in Caesarea. This close association made him an eyewitness to many of the events which took place in the Apostle's life, as indicated by the so-called "we" and "us" sections of the Book of Acts.

In this first lesson, we will

Jesus revealed in His questions and answers amazed the teachers.

Despite Christ's superior wisdom, position as the Son of God and the Messiah sent for man's redemption, when His parents found Him, He submitted to their authority and returned to Nazareth with them. There He grew up, advancing in wisdom and stature, finding favor with God and men.

In preparation for His ministry, Jesus sought out His cousin, John the Baptist, seeking to be baptized. Why Jesus should have submitted to this rite is unexplained. Even John felt there was no need for it, for Jesus was sinless. Yet, because Jesus took upon Himself man's weaknesses and sinfulness, He entered the Jordan as the representative of a fallen humanity which needed its sins washed away by baptism. When the rite was completed, the Holy Ghost, in the form of a dove, descended upon our Lord, and a voice from the heavens said, "Thou art my beloved Son; in thee I am well pleased."

The baptism affected Jesus profoundly, for He went from the Jordan into the wilderness where He fasted for forty days.

GOLDEN TEXT

"And Jesus answered and said unto him, 'Get thee behind me, Satan: for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve.'—Luke 4:8."

consider Jesus' visit to the Temple of Jerusalem at the age of twelve; His baptism by John the Baptist; and His temptation by Satan during the forty days in the wilderness.

As good Jews, Mary and Joseph went annually to the Temple in Jerusalem to celebrate the Passover. Not until He was twelve—the age when a Jewish boy is considered morally responsible for his acts—did Jesus go with them. After the Passover, Mary and Joseph started home to Nazareth. At the end of the first day's journey, they discovered that Jesus was not with them. Though they had the fullest confidence in Him and knew that He would be where He ought to be, they failed to realize that at this first festival in the Temple and acquaintance with the teachers, He would naturally linger to talk with them as long as possible.

Christ entered the Temple as a Son of the law, sitting down as a disciple. The teachers talked to Him, taught Him and asked Him questions. Then Jesus—as was His right—asked the teachers questions arising out of the religious training He had received at home. The clarity, comprehension and insight

His Roadside Church Will Never Be Called 'Resthaven'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Rev. Lester Kinsolving has little patience with what he calls injustice and pettiness in his Church and has organized a clergy's union to change things.

The 39-year-old Episcopal priest, the son of a bishop, is one of a new breed of clergymen who work outside the traditional job of shepherding a flock in an assigned parish.

Kinsolving shies away from the word "union" in describing his recently incorporated Association of Episcopal Clergy.

"Rather," he said in an interview modeled after the American Bar Association or the American Association of University Professors.

A man of energy, he writes a weekly religious column for the San Francisco Chronicle, works as a reporter for the newspaper, campaigns for reforms in California's abortion laws and is president of the new priests' association.

"There are many causes for the association to fight for," he said, "because the Church is analogous to a large corporation with 10,000 graduate executives and no personnel department."

In his view, injustices range from the administration of the pension fund for widows to salaries paid clergymen.

"Widows of priests are paid one-millionth of the fund's total assets per month," the priest said. The fund, Kinsolving said, totals $160 million and pensioners "receive an average of $133 a month."

"The Church pension fund is operated in a manner approved by the general convention," said Bishop John E. Hines, leader of the Church's clergymen. "Some Church institutions are subject to criticism by people who think they can run them better."

Bishop Hines has described Kinsolving's association as "outside the nature of the Church."

The association also is campaigning for higher pay for priests.

Kinsolving supports himself, his wife and three children by his newspaper work and by writing magazine articles.

"One goal we have is to create conditions where a priest has the freedom to express his personal convictions in sermons to his congregation. With the present lack of freedom, priests are leaving the parochial ministry to work in schools, administration and in special projects such as civil rights," he said.

"The association is growing slowly," Kinsolving said. "We have 150 members from all over the United States, representing 23 dioceses."

These include dioceses in Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Michigan, Georgia, Illinois, Virginia, Washington, D.C., and California, he said.

Kinsolving, son of the late Bishop Arthur B. Kinsolving of Arizona, has done most of his work in missions. He said he resigned one post in New London, N. H., because the members could not agree on construction details of a new church "after 10 years of meetings by the committees."

Jesus revealed in His questions and answers amazed the teachers.

Despite Christ's superior wisdom, position as the Son of God and the Messiah sent for man's redemption, when His parents found Him, He submitted to their authority and returned to Nazareth with them. There He grew up, advancing in wisdom and stature, finding favor with God and men.

In preparation for His ministry, Jesus sought out His cousin, John the Baptist, seeking to be baptized. Why Jesus should have submitted to this rite is unexplained. Even John felt there was no need for it, for Jesus was sinless. Yet, because Jesus took upon Himself man's weaknesses and sinfulness, He entered the Jordan as the representative of a fallen humanity which needed its sins washed away by baptism. When the rite was completed, the Holy Ghost, in the form of a dove, descended upon our Lord, and a voice from the heavens said, "Thou art my beloved Son; in thee I am well pleased."

The baptism affected Jesus profoundly, for He went from the Jordan into the wilderness where He fasted for forty days.

GOLDEN TEXT
"And Jesus answered and said unto him, 'Get thee behind me, Satan: for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve.'—Luke 4:8.

consider Jesus' visit to the Temple of Jerusalem at the age of twelve; His baptism by John the Baptist; and His temptation by Satan during the forty days in the wilderness.

As good Jews, Mary and Joseph went annually to the Temple in Jerusalem to celebrate the Passover. Not until He was twelve—the age when a Jewish boy is considered morally responsible for his acts—did Jesus go with them. After the Passover, Mary and Joseph started home to Nazareth. At the end of the first day's journey, they discovered that Jesus was not with them. Though they had the fullest confidence in Him and knew that He would be where He ought to be, they failed to realize that at this first festival in the Temple and acquaintance with the teachers, He would naturally linger to talk with them as long as possible.

Christ entered the Temple as a Son of the law, sitting down as a disciple. The teachers talked to Him, taught Him and asked Him questions. Then Jesus—as was His right—asked the teachers questions arising out of the religious training He had received at home. The clarity, comprehension and insight

His Roadside Church Will Never Be Called 'Resthaven'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Rev. Lester Kinsolving has little patience with what he calls injustice and pettiness in his Church and has organized a clergy's union to change things.

The 39-year-old Episcopal priest, the son of a bishop, is one of a new breed of clergymen who work outside the traditional job of shepherding a flock in an assigned parish.

Kinsolving shies away from the word "union" in describing his recently incorporated Association of Episcopal Clergy.

"Rather," he said in an interview, "union" in describing a model after the American Bar Association or the American Association of University Professors.

A man of energy, he writes a weekly religious column for the week Prayer Meeting, 7:30 p. m. Bishop John E. Hines, leader of the Church's clergymen. "Some Church institutions are subject to criticism by people who think they can run them better."

Bishop Hines has described Kinsolving's association as "outside the nature of the Church."

The association also is campaigning for higher pay for priests.

Kinsolving supports himself, his wife and three children by his newspaper work and by writing magazine articles.

"One goal we have is to create conditions where a priest has the freedom to express his personal convictions in sermons to his congregation. With the present lack of freedom, priests are leaving the parochial ministry to work in schools, administration and in special projects such as civil rights," he said.

"The association is growing slowly," Kinsolving said. "We have 150 members from all over the United States, representing 23 dioceses."

These include dioceses in Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Michigan, Georgia, Illinois, Virginia, Washington, D.C., and California, he said.

Kinsolving, son of the late Bishop Arthur B. Kinsolving of Arizona, has done most of his work in missions. He said he resigned one post in New London, N. H., because the members could not agree on construction details of a new church "after 10 years of meetings by the committees."

Saturday Night Will Be Big Midwinter Bacchanalia

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

All signs point to a revelry boom New Year's Eve that could be the biggest in fun and money since World War II. You could pay anywhere from a buck to a hundred dollars for the night out.

Apparently ready to put aside serious thoughts of the war in Vietnam and other world and domestic tensions, many Americans seemed determined to make a big night of it.

"The people seem determined to celebrate and do their worrying on Jan. 3," said Phil Miles, vice president of New York's Brody Corporation, which manages the Rainbow Room and the Rainbow Grill among other establishments.

Generally, prices will run about the same as last year, and in some instances slightly lower, an Associated Press sampling of night clubs, hotels and restaurants across the country showed.

Peter Redfearn, resident manager of the Hotel Claremont in Berkeley, Calif., explaining why the hotel's Churchill Room cocktail party had been reduced from $10 a couple to $7.50, said: "You might call it tight money. We're trying to get them to loosen it up."

A spokesman at San Francisco's Hotel Fairmount, explaining why it is sticking to last year's price of $25 per person in the Venetian Room for dinner-dancing and $15 per person in the Tonga Room, said: "We could have raised prices and still filled the rooms. But many of the celebrants are those who come every year. So we're going to stick to the old price."

In Chicago, the top is $100 a couple, including tax and tip, at Maxim's de Paris in the Astor Tower Hotel. The price, the same as last year, includes a gourmet dinner with Russian caviar, dancing imported French favors and a luxury suite in which a champagne breakfast is served in bed.

Or you can skip the suite and bubbly in bed and pay only $50 a couple, or after 2 a.m. can have a special breakfast with dancing for $10 a couple plus tax and tip.

In New Orleans, prices will range from $25 per person at the Blue Room in the Roosevelt

Band Earns Second Place

"The Dedicated Followers," a local teen-age band, won second place in a Battle of the Bands this week at Wellston.

Nine bands competed in the musical program. Judging centered on setting up equipment, general appearance, lead singer, drummer and lead guitar.

Members of the band are Steve Cupp, lead guitar; Mike Fuller, bass guitar; Dennis Hulse, drummer; Bruce Tigmer, vocalist.

A perfect score was set at 270 points. First place went to a group called the Swiss Navy with a score of 242. The local group earned runner-up honors with a score of 236.

The band will play for a dance Jan. 7 at the 4-H and Grange Building and a television appearance is planned on Jan. 9. Other upcoming engagements are slated at McArthur, Chillicothe, Baltimore, Jackson and Waverly.

Tariton Methodist Service Scheduled

Watch Night Service will be held at the Tariton Methodist Church Saturday evening at 10:30. The speaker will be Mr. Delbert Ash.

The service will be climaxed with Holy Communion at midnight, celebrated by The Rev. Don Cummins. The public is invited.

Hotel, where singer Nancy Ames is appearing, to $1 per person at Preservation Hall in the French Quarter where Negro bands play traditional Dixieland jazz. No drinks are sold at Preservation Hall and patrons must sit on benches.

Many big-name entertainers, including Juliet Prowse, Xavier Cugat, Mort Sahl, Jimmy Durante, Debbie Reynolds and Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme, are appearing in gambling casinos on Las Vegas' Strip. You can get a look at them for $25 a head.

Rooms in the major hotels in Vegas have been sold out for a month.

In some spots, dinner and dancing runs $10 and $15 a head, including favors and gifts for the ladies.

The Ambassador Hotel's Coconut Grove in Los Angeles is sold out. Singer Ella Fitzgerald is appearing there, and it will cost $29.50 a head for dinner, tax and gratuities, the same as last year. Drinks are extra.

For the first time in several years, many of the major hotel spots in Los Angeles are reported sold out. The average drink will cost from $1.25 to $1.50 in the better places.

R.E. Bredeson, owner of several clubs and lounges in Dallas, Tex., said: "More people are complaining about money this year than before. But I think there still will be a bigger turnout this year because it is a Saturday night."

At one Philadelphia spot, bar stools are selling for $7.50 each, which includes five drinks but no dinner. Top Philadelphia night clubs expect capacity crowds.

In New York, dinner-dance prices are as high as $100 a couple, with $50 a couple fairly common.

An official of New York Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians said there might be some labor shortages among the 30,000 members for the first time in 20 years. He said many musicians were being hired for private parties, as well as for clubs, hotels and restaurants.

One Atlanta strip spot is featuring amateur night for strippers, and the woman manager says she expects several to appear.

"And some of them are very good, honey," she added.

Logan Elm Wins Tourney

By STEVE JONES
Logan Elm romped to a 70-41 decision over Laurelville Thursday to capture the 1966 Zane Trace Holiday Tournament championship.

Host school Zane Trace fell to Huntington, 74-60, in the consolation game.

For the Laurelville Wildcats and the Logan Elm Braves, it was a first time go for the championship tilt. Both teams had been in the tourney for a number of years, but without title success.

The Braves scored first when Russ Merrin rebounded a missed shot and laid the ball through the hoop with two minutes gone in the first quarter.

NOT TO be denied a chance to add another trophy to the collection of hardware at Logan Elm High School, the Braves never trailed in the game. The champs led 19-9 at the end of the first period, 37-21 at halftime, and 55-27 going into the fourth quarter.

Good defensive play by Tom Smith, Steve Fouch and Greg Fraunfelter stopped the Wildcats' usually potent fast break and outside scoring game.

Steve Hettinger, who has been averaging 20 points a game for the Hocking County quintet, was shut off with five markers. Smith, in addition to limiting the speedy little Wildcat guard to one of the lowest scoring performances of his high school career, found time to zip six field goals and two foul shots for 14 markers.

Mike Kneece, who has been averaging nearly 12 points a game for the Wildcats with his accurate outside shooting, was stopped with one field goal as Fouch and Fraunfelter took turns guarding the slender Wildcat sharpshooter.

Fraunfelter scored nine markers and Fouch eight, giving the Braves 17 points from the guard position they shared during the game.

The two forwards for Laurelville, Mike Chestnut and Jeff Whitcraft, were limited to a total of six points. Whitcraft scored only one field goal while Chestnut's production was limited to four shots from the foul line.

ONLY Laurelville's smooth 6-3 junior center, Bob Bowers, reached his potential. Connecting on seven of 10 chances from

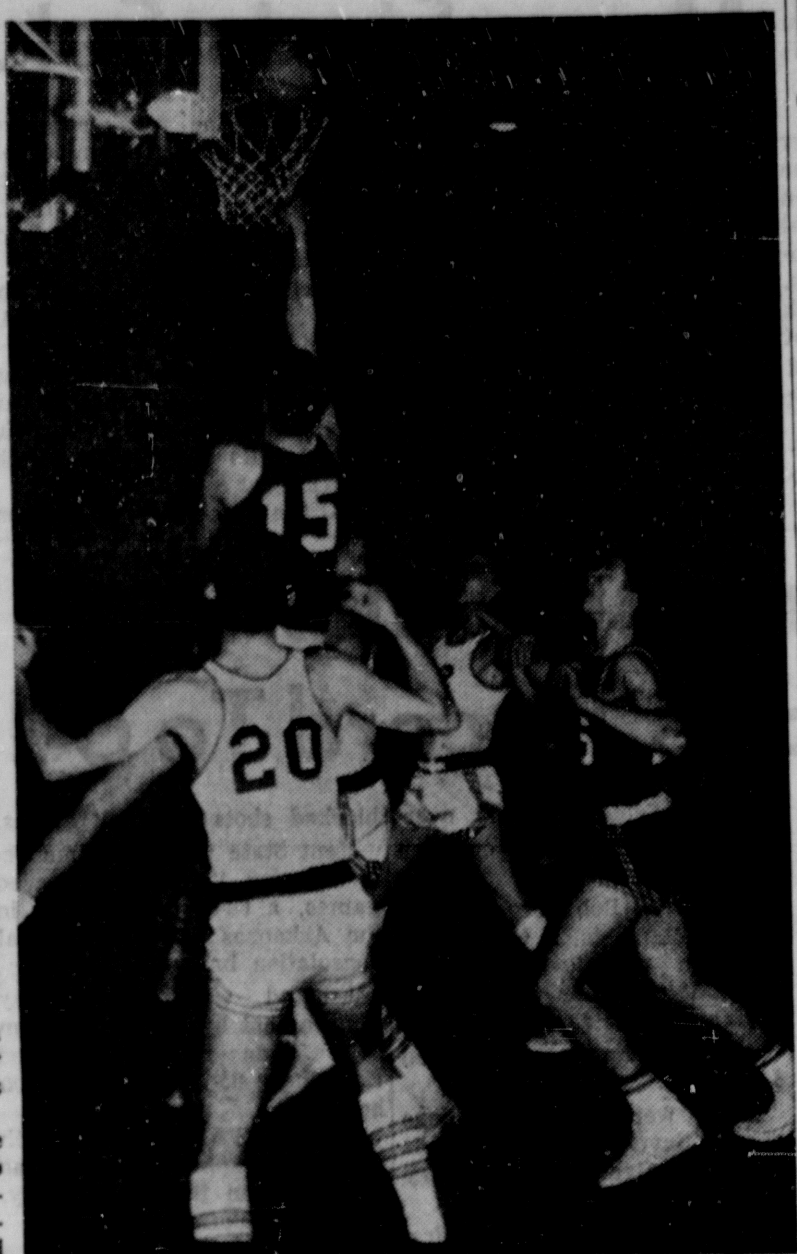

Baylor, West Give Lakers New Hope

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Elgin Baylor and Jerry West are on the move, and that could mean an unhappy new year for the Western Division teams in the National Basketball Association that are counting on a continuation of the surprisingly poor showing thus far by the Los Angeles Lakers.

In Cincinnati Thursday night, Baylor poured in 40 points and West came up with 35 for the biggest combined total the Laker's 1-2 punch has had this season. Los Angeles won 125-114.

Los Angeles is still in fifth place in the West, 10 games behind the division-leading San Francisco Warriors, but the Lakers are closing in on the rest of the division for that fourth playoff spot. They are just three games behind second-place St. Louis, two in back of Detroit and half a game behind Chicago.

In the only other game in the NBA, Boston edged the Hawks 112-110 at St. Louis behind John Havlicek's 14 last-quarter points.

Tight Defense Spells 57-36 Loss for CHS at Wilmington

By HERB AMEY

Faced with a sticky man-to-man defense Thursday night, the Tigers of Circleville found themselves unable to penetrate to their own territory and lost to the host Wilmington "Hurricane", 57-36, in an SCO League game.

The Tigers lead by a slim point after the first period, 10-9. With 2:30 remaining in the half, senior Roger Vaughn of Wilmington scored a go-ahead bucket, putting the Hurricane in front, 14-13, for the first time.

Vaughn, showing spirited defense stole the ball from the Tigers twice more and converted each into two-point plays in the quarter.

As the half ended, Wilmington held the lead, 20-15.

TIM STONEROCK, leading scorer in the loop, had picked up one personal foul in the first period and three in the second. He was benched by Tiger mentor Chuck Hill midway in the second period until late in the third.

In the first 16 minutes of play the Tigers hit seven of 25 shots from the field and one of a pair of free throw attempts for their 15 markers.

Wilmington, paced by Vaughn's 11 points, hit nine field goals out of 30 attempts and two of five shots from the line.

The third period proved disastrous for the Tigers. They scored only five points while Wilmington ran wild for 22. The Roundtowners simply could not get the ball under their basket.

The man - to - man press employed by Wilmington snagged harried Tiger passes in the backcourt providing scores on driving layups.

Circleville hit only one field goal in the period in five shots. Three other points came on free throws.

WILMINGTON, on the other hand, had a hey-day with their steals. They had 20 shots from the floor during the quarter and connected on half of them.

Halfway through the quarter Stonerock returned to help guide his team. His efforts were futile as the Hurricane continued its ball swarming tactics.

The fourth period saw the Tigers stage a rally on free throws by Stonerock and Mike Martindill. Coach Al Burger emptied his bench with 3:53 left in the game and a 50-26 lead. The final points for Circleville came on four charity tosses and a field goal each by Martindill and sophomore Dave Horst.

The Tigers attempted 43 shots during the game and hit on 12 for 28 per cent. From the line they canned 12 of 22 for 54 per cent. They committed 19 turnovers, largely in the second and third periods.

Wilmington fired at the bucket 62 times and landed 23 for a 37 per cent clip. The hosts made 11 of 22 charity tosses for an even 50 per cent.

Vaughn of Wilmington was high scorer of the night. With his fast moves and alertness he canned eight of 18 field shots and one of five charity throws for 17 points.

Second in scoring for the Hurricane was John Petty, a 6-3 junior. He made six of 16 shots from the field and three of four from the line for 15 markers.

Bill Peele also cracked the double figure column with six field goals and a free throw for 13 points.

Stonerock led the Tigers in scoring. He shot 11 times and hit on five and added six of 10 free throws for 16 points. It was his lowest since the first game of the season against Westfall when he scored 14.

Mike Martindill and Jeff Steele each had six points. Martindill had a field goal and four free throws and Steele had three buckets.

Dave Horst, moving up from the reserve team, canned two field goals for four points.

Dan Speakman and Joe Winter, regular standouts on the Tiger team, were both held to two points.

STONEROCK had nine rebounds to lead Circleville in that department. Speakman and Steele each had six and Winner two.

Petty snagged 11 rebounds for Wilmington to take game honors in that department. Peele contributed eight.

Logan Elm Wins Tourney

By STEVE JONES

Logan Elm romped to a 70-41 decision over Laurelville Thursday to capture the 1966 Zane Trace Holiday Tournament championship.

Host school Zane Trace fell to Huntington, 74-60, in the consolation game.

For the Laurelville Wildcats and the Logan Elm Braves, it was a first time go for the championship tilt. Both teams had been in the tourney for a number of years, but without title success.

The Braves scored first when Russ Merrin rebounded a missed shot and laid the ball through the hoop with two minutes gone in the first quarter.

NOT TO be denied a chance to add another trophy to the collection of hardware at Logan Elm High School, the Braves never trailed in the game. The champs led 19-9 at the end of the first period, 37-21 at half-time, and 55-27 going into the fourth quarter.

Good defensive play by Tom Smith, Steve Fouch and Greg Fraunfelter stopped the Wildcats' usually potent fast break and outside scoring game.

Steve Hettinger, who has been averaging 20 points a game for the Hocking County quintet, was shut off with five markers. Smith, in addition to limiting the speedy little Wildcat guard to one of the lowest scoring performances of his high school career, found time to zip six field goals and two foul shots for 14 markers.

Mike Kneee, who has been averaging nearly 12 points a game for the Wildcats with his accurate outside shooting, was stopped with one field goal as Fouch and Fraunfelter took turns guarding the slender Wildcat sharpshooter.

Fraunfelter scored nine markers and Fouch eight, giving the Braves 17 points from the guard position they shared during the game.

The two forwards for Laurelville, Mike Chestnut and Jeff Whitcraft, were limited to a total of six points. Whitcraft scored only one field goal while Chestnut's production was limited to four shots from the foul line.

ONLY Laurelville's smooth 6-3 junior center, Bob Bowers, reached his potential. Connecting on seven of 10 chances from

Baylor, West Give Lakers New Hope

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Elgin Baylor and Jerry West are on the move, and that could mean an unhappy new year for the Western Division teams in the National Basketball Association that are counting on a continuation of the surprisingly poor showing thus far by the Los Angeles Lakers.

In Cincinnati Thursday night, Baylor poured in 40 points and West came up with 35 for the biggest combined total the Lakers' 1-2 punch has had this season. Los Angeles won 125-114.

Los Angeles is still in fifth place in the West, 10 games behind the division-leading San Francisco Warriors, but the Lakers are closing in on the rest of the division for that fourth playoff spot. They are just three games behind second-place St. Louis, two in back of Detroit and half a game behind Chicago.

In the only other game in the NBA, Boston edged the Hawks 112-110 at St. Louis behind John Havlicek's 14 last-quarter points.

East-West Tilt May Go To Air

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A half-ton of braking power aims to bring All-America backs to a quick halt Saturday in the 42nd annual Shrine East-West football game.

The East backfield boasts two who won A-A honors for 1966 — Nick Eddy of Notre Dame and Clint Jones of Michigan State.

Mel Farr of UCLA was the third running back in the All-America backfield this year, and he is on the West squad.

Meeting them head on will be hefty linemen. The five for the East average 243 pounds and total 1,213, actually more than a half ton. The West ends, tackles and middle guard average 233 and aggregate 1,164.

With those behemoths ready to charge, it could be that both coaches John Ralston of the West and Duffy Daugherty of the East will use strategy aimed at going over them via the air.

Defensively, the forward group for the East opens with 238-pound Alan Page of Notre Dame and Don Parker, 240, of Virginia at ends; Tom Fussell, 230, Louisiana State, and Bob Rowe, 245, Western Michigan, at tackles; and Dave Rowe, 260, Penn State, at middle guard.

If the West runners penetrate this group, they come up against linebackers Jim Lynch of Notre Dame, a 230-pounder, and Stan Juk of South Carolina at 210. Lynch and Jones were elected co-captains for the game starting at 4:45 EST, with national television (NBC).

Western front liners are Tom Greenlee, 195, Washington, and Loyd Phipps, 230, of Arkansas at ends; Leo Carroll, 255, San Diego State, and Dennis Randall, 230, Oklahoma, at tackles; and John Richardson, 254, UCLA middle guard. Linebackers are George Harvey, 240, of Kansas, and Ron McCall, 235, of Utah's Weber College.

Ralston has three passers... San Diego State's Don Horn, Dave Lewis of Stanford and Tim VanGelder of Iowa State. The latter, however, has been hampered by injuries.

North Carolina's Danny Talbott and Benny Russell of Louisville do the throwing for the East, which hasn't won this game since 1962 when Notre Dame's Darryl Lamonia engineered the triumph.

Rose Bowl Teams Hold Open Drills

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—This year's Rose Bowl seems to be the start of a new era. Or maybe it's the end of an old trend. However viewed, there has been no bickering, no cloak-and-dagger exercises and nothing but good clean humor in the exchanges between the Bowl rivals, Purdue and Southern California.

Southern Cal's coach, John McKay, and Jack Mollenkopf of the Boilermakers have held open practices for the press. For years, the Big Ten drills have been barred to West Coast writers, and the Easterners couldn't get into the coast team's sessions.

"There aren't many secrets in football," said McKay, who commented one afternoon:

"I'm angry and I hope my team is angry."

But McKay's ire wasn't aimed at Purdue.

John, who seldom strays too far from a sense of humor, has been irritated with some writers here who, in effect, seemed to criticize USC for accepting the role of Rose Bowl host after losing to UCLA.

However, a majority of the writers have picked the underdog Trojans to upset Purdue.

With those behemoths ready to charge, it could be that both coaches John Ralston of the West and Duffy Daugherty of the East will use strategy aimed at going over them via the air.

Defensively, the forward group for the East opens with 238-pound Alan Page of Notre Dame and Don Parker, 240, of Virginia at ends; Tom Fussell, 230, Louisiana State, and Bob Rowe, 245, Western Michigan, at tackles, and Dave Rowe, 260, Penn State, at middle guard.

If the West runners penetrate this group, they come up against linebackers Jim Lynch of Notre Dame, a 230-pounder, and Stan Juk of South Carolina at 210. Lynch and Jones were elected co-captains for the game starting at 4:45 EST, with national television (NBC).

Western front liners are Tom Greenlee, 195, Washington, and Loyd Phipps, 230, of Arkansas at ends; Leo Carroll, 255, San Diego State, and Dennis Randall, 230, Oklahoma, at tackles, and John Richardson, 254, UCLA middle guard. Linebackers are George Harvey, 240, of Kansas, and Ron McCall, 235, of Utah's Weber College.

Ralston has three passers... San Diego State's Don Horn, Dave Lewis of Stanford and Tim VanGelder of Iowa State. The latter, however, has been hampered by injuries.

North Carolina's Danny Talbott and Benny Russell of Louisville do the throwing for the East, which hasn't won this game since 1962 when Notre Dame's Daryl Lamonica engineered the triumph.

Rose Bowl Teams Hold Open Drills

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—This year's Rose Bowl seems to be the start of a new era. Or maybe it's the end of an old trend.

However viewed, there has been no bickering, no cloak-and-dagger exercises and nothing but good clean humor in the exchanges between the Bowl rivals, Purdue and Southern California.

Southern Cal's coach, John McKay, and Jack Mollenkopf of the Boiler-makers have held open practices for the press. For years, the Big Ten drills have been barred to West Coast writers, and the Easterners couldn't get into the coast team's sessions.

"There aren't many secrets in football," said McKay, who commented one afternoon: "I'm angry and I hope my team is angry."

But McKay's ire wasn't aimed at Purdue.

John, who seldom strays too far from a sense of humor, has been irritated with some writers here who, in effect, seemed to criticize USC for accepting the role of Rose Bowl host after losing to UCLA.

However, a majority of the writers have picked the underdog Trojans to upset Purdue.

Uncle Sam Owns Hoard Of California Black Gold

TAFT, Calif. (AP) — For 54 years the federal government has been hoarding a $3-billion property in Elk Hills, Calif., hoping it may never have to use it.

It is a 98-square-mile reserve rich in oil deposits—one of Uncle Sam's most valuable pieces of real estate. Scattered across the brush-covered hills, 10 miles from Taft, are 1,032 wells ready to produce 230,000 barrels of oil a day.

But aside from periodic checks on functioning—and a short period in World War II—the wells are little used. They are America's standby oil pool for national emergencies. Probably only an all-out war would get the wells into production.

The reserve is administered by the U.S. Navy and is overseen by Navy Cmdr. Justin D. Denman, a veteran of battleship, carrier and cruiser duty. Assisting Denman is another Navy officer and 16 civilians. Then there are about a 100 persons employed by the Standard Oil Co.

Of the 46,095 acres in the reserve, Standard Oil owns about 20 per cent. It owned all the land prior to Sept. 12, 1912 when Congress set it aside. Standard Oil is cooperating with the plan and draws only enough oil to pay taxes and operating expenses.

So rich is the field that during a period following World War II, 200 wells were drilled without hitting a dry hole.

In fact, the oil workers produce $10 million worth of oil

School Foundation Funds Distributed

Distribution of school foundation funds to Circleville and Pickaway County Schools has been announced by Archer E. Reilly, auditor of the state.

Circleville schools received $28,610. A total of $3,794.99 went to the office of George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, for disbursement.

Of that total, the County Board of Education received $4,006.25, $5,483.02 went to Logan Elm, $11,174.17 to T'ays Valley and $10,131.54 to Westfall.

a year just in periodic tests of well equipment and in restricting losses from movement. It all flows into the U.S. Treasury. The field figured in the 1923 Teapot Dome scandal that shook the administration of President Warren G. Harding. A Senate investigation disclosed that Albert B. Fall, then secretary of the interior, had persuaded the secretary of the Navy to transfer the Elk Hills and Teapot Dome Wyoming oil reserves to Fall's department.

Fall leased the reserves to private oil producers without competitive bidding. Fall said the government should get all the royalties it could before the field was drained by wells in the adjoining Salt Creek field.

The World Today

By JOHN CHADWICK
WASHINGTON (AP) — The start of the new Congress will once again find the Senate caught up in a tussle over its antifilibuster rule.

As usual, the battle will stir up a lot of parliamentary dust likely to obscure what both sides regard as fundamental issues. It also may put Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey — the Senate's presiding officer — on a politically sticky spot.

The dispute is over Senate Rule 22 under which a two-thirds majority of senators voting is required to cut off debate. Once the rule is put into effect, each senator's speaking time is limited to one hour.

In its present form this cloture (debate-closing) rule was adopted in 1959. It was largely the handiwork of Lyndon B. Johnson, then the Senate's Democratic leader, and represented a slight modification of an earlier rule requiring a two-thirds majority of the Senate membership to shut off a filibuster.

With the beginning of each new Congress since then, a bipartisan group of liberals has led a fight for a change that would permit cloture to be imposed by three-fifths or a majority of the Senate.

For years they have argued that the two-thirds rule blocked the passage of meaningful civil rights legislation, forced the watering-down of other controversial measures and encouraged paralyzing filibusters.

Southern senators led by Democratic Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia have been in the forefront of those opposing any further limitation on freedom of debate. For this reason the issue has taken on a civil rights coloration.

But Russell and other senators from outside the South have contended what is at stake is whether the Senate will be subjected to "gag rule."

Much of the steam was taken out of the fight for a change in Rule 22 two years ago by the passage in 1964 of the most comprehensive civil rights bill in the nation's history. A Southern filibuster against the measure was cut off by a 71-29 vote.

The argument that the two-thirds rule blocked enactment of meaningful civil rights measures was further weakened with the passage of the 1965 voting rights bill after a Dixie filibuster was halted by a 70-30 vote.

These were the first two instances in which Rule 22 had been successfully invoked against civil rights measures, but it was a different story this year on the administration's open housing bill. After the House passed the bill, the Senate killed it by twice refusing to put its antifilibuster rule into effect. The first vote was 54 for cloture and 42 against; the second, 52 for and 41 against.

This has fueled fresh demands for a change in the two-thirds rule, along with the inability at the last session to break a filibuster against a bill to repeal a section of the Taft-Hartley Act which permits states to ban the union shop.

Proponents of a change contend that at the start of a Congress a change in rules ~~can~~ be made by majority vote without having to muster a two-thirds majority to halt a filibuster. Opponents maintain the rules carry over.

In the new Congress convening Jan. 10 the issue may be put up to Humphrey who as a senator was in the forefront of those battling to permit filibusters to be choked off by majority vote.
